MARAWARPINA "TO STRETCH OUT THE HAND"

In keeping with the tradition of our unique name 'Pen' meaning five and 'Mara' meaning hand. Marawarpina is an ancient Aboriginal word meaning to "stretch out the hand."

When the Five Families decided to produce a classic Australian red wine, we looked into Australia's rich wine history for our inspiration. The classic wines from Australia in the 1940's, 50's and 60's were multi regional blends from great winemakers like Maurice O'Shea. To achieve our goal we will continue this trend, by combining the best of our Five Families, with the best of other premium wine regions in Australia.

Literally the Five Families have stretched out their hands to their close friends in other wine Regions and created a wine of exceptional quality.

Each vintage the blend of the Marawarpina could be slightly different, for our goal is to produce the best wine we can from both our own families and from our extensive network of friends.

Penmara will continue to produce the wines that you have come to love from the vineyards of our Five Families, however our Marawarpina will always be something that is very special and of the highest quality.

For this inaugural release, we have reached out to our friends in the Clare Valley, South Australia, who were able to provide us with a special parcel of their Shiraz from the 2005 vintage. When we blended this wine, with our best barrels of Shiraz from the Orange Region, our winemakers knew we had something very special indeed. The result is a wine with a robust bouquet of red berry fruits and spices, opening to a full bodied palate with great depth and elegance.

Reward your highest achievements with the MARAWARPINA. The best there is from the Five Families of Penmara.
